The factors to be considered by the Court in determining whether the defendant should be detained pending trial are enumerated in section 3142(g). The Court has already noted that this case involves a minor victim. The evidence at the detention hearing established that the weight of the evidence against the defendant is overwhelming.

Regarding potential danger to the community, the Court notes the nature of the instant offense and that the pending charge involves a child, use of a computer to facilitate the alleged offense, abuse of a child, and a sex offense. The Court notes defendant's substance abuse history, mental health history, and safety concerns for the community.

The evidence established that the defendant and a co-defendant exchanged computer messages involving incest related pornography, bondage pornography, bestiality pornography, child pornography, and child erotica. They also discussed having sexual contact with children and talked about having children together and impregnating them. The defendant also made comments indicating she would be interested in assisting the co-defendant in drugging and raping children and adult women.

Based on all the foregoing, the Court finds by finds by clear and convincing evidence that the defendant is a danger to the community.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the defendant be and is hereby detained without bail.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the defendant be committed to the custody of the Attorney General or his designated representative for confinement in a correction facility separate, to the extent practicable, from persons awaiting or serving sentences or being held in custody pending appeal. The defendant shall be afforded a reasonable opportunity for private consultation with defense counsel. On order of a court of the United States, or on request of an attorney for the Government, the person in charge of the corrections facility shall deliver the defendant to the United States Marshal for the purpose of an appearance in connection with a court proceeding.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
